PENULETTES.

Chew Jack on's Best Sweet Navy Tobacco.

Attend church to-day.

The weather is slightly fallish again.

September, the first full month, is almost half gone.

The days of the linen duster will soon be numbered, and the ulster will take its place.

Our friend Adolph Ochs, publisher of the Chattanooga Times, has just gone on a trip to Cincinnati over the new Cincinnati Southern Railroad, and, in a talk with a Commercial representative, gives a glowing account of the prospects of that line.

Nashville American, Friday: The Tennessee Coal & Railroad Company yesterday contributed, through Chairman John D. Anderson, of the Memphis Relief Committee, five carloads of coal for the use of the citizens of that city. Dr. Wm. Morrow also contributed five carloads of coal to Memphis.

Facts.
The style, beauty and durability of shoes to be seen at H. W. Hall's is pleasing to lovers of easy feet.

Personal.
Mr. E. J. Sanford, of the extensive drug house of Sanford, Chamberlain & Albers, and Maj. T. S. Webb, a prominent legal attorney of the city, left yesterday for a pleasure and hunting excursion to Wyoming Territory, to be absent a few weeks.

Mr. Matt Nelson, the popular Gay street dry goods merchant, and wife, returned home yesterday evening from a visit to Mrs. Nelson's relatives at Athens.

Says the Morgan Dispatch, published at Wartburg, Morgan county: Judge John L. Moses of Knoxville, who has been sojourning here for a week past, left on Wednesday for home. He has purchased a farm in the Glades neighborhood of this county, upon which two of his sons, Messrs. Lees and J. H. Moses, will locate.

From General Insurance Agent: CINCINNATI, Nov. 1, 1878.

Dear Sir—I have seen your Patent Lightning Rod and Insulator tested practically by an electric machine. I have seen electrical discharges in the atmosphere that fully confirm me in the views you suggest. You can erect one on my dwelling in Hartwell, Hamilton county, Ohio, at your earliest convenience.

Yours, most respectfully,
H. H. JUSTICE,
Gen'l Agent Mutual Fire Ins. Co., of Cincinnati, office No. 133 Walnut street, near Gibson House.

Shea & Donahoe, Knoxville, Tenn., General Agents for Tennessee. See advertisement elsewhere.

How Recommendations are Made.

The following note was received a few days ago by our worthy United States District Attorney, from two gentlemen in a neighboring county, recommending for office a worthy fellow, who enjoys neither the confidence nor the respect of those who know him:

We, the undersigned, acknowledging the necessity of a U. S. Commissioner in our county, would respectfully represent that to our personal knowledge, there is no one competent to fill the office who would accept it. Therefore, we most respectfully recommend _____, lately located at _____, for the appointment, believing that the appointment would not only meet the general approval of, but be a great convenience to our people.

Delicate and Delicous.

The Pet Rose, Evening Violet, Lily of the Valley, Meadow Flowers and 11 of the "odors" made for the handkerchief and toilet by Dr. Price, are not only very delicate and delicious, but fragrant and persistent. Dr. Price's Unique Perfumes are certainly as sweet as the flowers from which they are made.

Work of the Federal Grand Jury.

The Grand Jury of the Federal Court, at its term just about closed, was a representative body and dispatched business in a highly commendable manner. The jury was in session only eight days and sent in 89 indictments. They may be classified as follows: 70 in illicit whisky cases, 16 in tobacco cases, 2 for counterfeiting, and one for forging witness tickets. At the last January term of the court only 48 indictments only were sent.

The following shows the number of indictments sent by the jury of this court for each county: Anderson, 1; Blount, 7; Bradley, 2; Campbell, 1; Carter, 1; Claiborne, 5; Coche, 4; Grainger, 9; Hamilton, 1; Hancock, 4; Hawkins, 2; Johnson, 18; McMinn, 2; Meigs, 1; Monroe, 7; Polk, 8; Rhea, 1; Scott, 1; Union, 1.

It might be added in this connection, that since the last term of the Court a marked improvement is noticed in the way of violations of the law in the counties of Union, Monroe and Hancock.

Hall's is the cheapest store in the city.

FOREST HILL, Sept. 11, 1879.

MR. EDITOR: Trouble seems to be the common lot of humanity. We daily meet those whose exterior is as a sunny June morning, while just underneath the surface there may be a storm whose effects will be felt for years. That the many may profit by the sad mishaps of the few, is certainly the design of an inscrutable Providence.

The young man was detained in Knoxville rather later than usual "on business." In fact it was drifting toward the "wee sma' hours," when he mounted his rusty mare to repair to that home where maternal care and a downy couch awaited him. Whether it was the soporific nature of the business or something else, yet exhausted nature refused to be further taxed, and he fell asleep. How long he slept is a matter for debate, but while passing through a lonely stretch of woods he was rudely awakened from dreams in which bright eyes and gentle smiles were bearing a conspicuous part, by seeing a "great big black something," with giant strides and unearthly noise coming down the hill fearfully near. With a gentle tap, he admonished "Faunie" to proceed, and she, nothing loth, proceeded.

But, "miserable devil!" The "something" on reaching the road also made itself heard, and to his optical vision it appeared a creature smaller than Cowan, McCung & Co.'s wholesale house. "Faunie" was now asked, with some emphasis, to go forward; and, for the space of half a mile or so, it was a first-class second edition of the irrefragable Tam o' Shanter, of legendary fame, who, "mounted on his gray mare, Meg," beat the devil in a fair race. But confidence in "Faunie" was not misplaced, and, in due time, horse and rider, with sweat dripping from every pore, arrived at the haven of safety, otherwise home; while the fiend, or whatever it may have been, remembering that there was a line which he "darena cross," retired into the dark shadows of the forest.

"Now has this tale of truth taken head, I'll say, and mother's son take heed."

MORAL: Don't stay out late "on business."

ECHO.

Who Has Not Been Bitten?

Probably no one. Doubtless we have all suffered to some extent the disagreeable sensations which a disordered or languid liver can inflict. Salubrity of the skin, constipation, nausea, vertigo, disorders in the vicinity of the irrefragable Tam o' Shanter, of legendary fame, who, "mounted on his gray mare, Meg," beat the devil in a fair race. Knoxville District Conference.

NEW SALEM, Knox County, Sept. 13, 1879.

MR. EDITOR: The District Conference for Knoxville District, Holston Conference, M. E. Church, met at this place on the 10th inst. It was called to order by the Rev. J. A. Ruble, Presiding Elder of the District, who also presided over the Conference, while Rev. T. S. Walker acted as Secretary. The deliberations of the Conference were quite harmonious with a few exceptions. There was a tolerably good representation, and a hearty support from the good people of this neighborhood, which is one of the best and most liberal hearted in the county.

The Conference got through with most of the important business Friday forenoon, and the afternoon session was chiefly devoted to such social exercises as presented themselves to the brethren. Rev. R. J. Cooke, pastor of the First M. E. Church, Knoxville, being present, was called upon and gave a few outlines of his religious experience. He gave an interesting recital of the ups and downs of his career from childhood to the present, telling how, having been raised by Roman Catholic parents, he left home when but a youth, became interested by the "Good Spirit," and, receiving counsel therefrom, separated himself from the Catholic Church, and cast his lot with Methodism, and how he became a Methodist preacher. The experience had a wonderful effect, and stirred the Conference into a general "Hallelujah!"

Rev. Dr. E. Q. Fuller, editor of the Atlanta Methodist Advocate, and Rev. J. B. Ford, Conference Sunday School agent, came in last night. Dr. Fuller, in an interesting talk, and Rev. R. J. Cooke preached last night. To day the quarterly meeting began.

Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine for October

Is one of the most interesting yet issued of this brilliant periodical. Every issue of literature is found in its pages, and it is of the very highest standard. The present number is even more crowded than usual with such reading as can not fail to entertain and instruct, and to exercise a beneficial effect on the reader. The editor has reproduced, in connection with apposite illustrations, Macaulay's elaborated biographical and critical articles on "The Pilgrimage of Progress," which is admitted by critics as the best thing which has ever been written concerning Bunyan. Another admirable article is entitled "Recollections of Audubon," in which the Rev. Robert Irvine gives pleasant reminiscences of Chalmers, Jeffrey, Wilson and others who made Edinburgh famous some thirty years ago. Godfrey A. Hudson, in the paper "An African Bishop" gives a sketch of the career of a native African who was sold as a slave when a mere boy, captured from a slave ship and sent to Sierra Leone, where he became a Christian, and received the degree of D. D., and finally became Bishop of Niger, in Africa. The department of fiction contains excellent stories by popular writers. The illustrated papers, depicting the manners, customs and aspects of various countries, are replete with interest and information. "Whitington White Horse," gives authentic and curious details of the life of the celebrated Mayor of London. There are poems of great merit by Alice Carey, James Bacon, Edwin Arnold, the editor, etc., etc., a very ably edited and popular Breviary, and the editor in "At Home and Abroad" presents a condensed survey of what is going on in the religious world, and speaks of several topics of current interest. The number contains 128 quarto pages and over 100 illustrations. The price of a single number is 25 cents, and the subscription $3 a year, prepaid.
